Thursday 6 June	TBA	Coal Drops Yard - 10 mins walk from Kings Cross Station	Pam Aynsley	A newly opened area at the back of King's Cross and St Pancras Stations. It is the previous location of trains from the North delivering coal to be loaded onto barges for redistribution around the country on the canal network. The area is now completely revamped and incorporates old and very modern architecture, water art installations, restaurants, street food, and the most amazing array of shops. It has a wonderful atmosphere and there are security guards everywhere so we can feel very safe. It is also just 10 minutes walk from the Francis Crick Institute, the discoverer of DNA, an amazing building, free entry and photography allowed inside and out. For anyone eager for more, just down the road from the Crick you will find The British Library, pop in to see the another building with modern and wonderful architecture including temporary and permanent exhibitions.
Saturday 8 June	TBA	Coal Drops Yard	Pam Aynsley	As Above
TBA July	TBA	Wicken Fenn	Ian Tulloch	A half-day outing to Wicken Fen Nature Reserve sometime in July. This could be either on a weekday or weekend or possibly both if there's enough interest. It offers many excellent photo opportunities - dragonflies/butterflies as well as other insects in abundance, Konik ponies, Highland cattle, birds, and typical Fenland landscapes including a waterpump. Entry costs £5.50 plus £3 for parking but is free for National Trust members. There is a cafe at the Visitor's Centre offering hot/cold meals and other refreshments.	Ian will recce in early July before firming up on arrangements
